

Our Founder's Story

Throughout my life, I have always loved working. It is through one's vocation that one usually makes the biggest positive impact on the world. But, too many people don't know what it is like to love work. So they don't make the impact that they otherwise could. I built Wolff Consulting in the belief that I could make learning about business fun and that learning about ourselves opens doors to effective leadership and achievement.

Let's keep things fun while getting things done!

Testimonials

"This provides a tool for a more complete understanding of our values as they relate to creating a positive dynamic with others."

~ Linda W.

"This game could be a very educational and thought-provoking tool for those starting a business as well as those that are studying business. I found it to be entertaining and stimulating, and also learned from collaborating with other players."

~ Sherry S.

"A unique view of human nature and relationships in a work environment. It has much to offer in communicating ideas."

~ Barry F

"Nick values and promotes education through guided self-discovery which makes for a more enriched experience and a longer lasting impression."

~ Victoria A.

"Powerful message on influence."

~ Elizabeth M.

Exceptional Teams

Our unique program creates perennially motivated, business savvy employees who win because they know how to persuade, interact well with business partners, manage interpersonal conflict, and always seek to provide value to others. We teach people how to capitalize on the intellectual diversity of the entire team. We build effective leaders -- those with the skills, vision, and character to mobilize the efforts of others to achieve.
